

Digital Media (in conjunction with Forth Valley College)

University of Stirling

Venues

Stirling Campus

Content

The course will provide you with practical training in the tools, applications and possibilities of the digital environment – from the creation of journalistic and multimedia content to its effective use across television, film, online channels, radio and beyond. The overarching aim of the course is to make sure you're work-ready and equipped with a broad range of mass media skills.

The first two years of this Honours degree course will be delivered by Forth Valley College at their Stirling campus, and you'll be based at the University of Stirling campus in Years 3 and 4

Throughout your course, you'll develop specialist skills and knowledge across areas such as TV and radio production, desktop publishing, scripting, writing for the media and web design.
