Content

The digital age has transformed the way news is reported and consumed, with more media platforms available than ever before. A degree in Journalism Studies from the University of Stirling equips you with the practical skills and theoretical knowledge you'll need to make a mark in this rapidly-evolving industry.

This course covers theoretical and practical aspects of journalism, and offers an in-depth, critical understanding of journalism practice. You'll work individually and in groups to write articles and prepare portfolios; create pages for print and online news platforms; produce and edit visuals; and contribute to class blogs. Everything you do will deepen your understanding of how professional journalists operate across broadcast, online and print media – and by the time you graduate, you'll be ready to take your place among them.
