

Computing and IT and Business

Open University in Scotland

Content

This is one of several subject combinations available in the Certificate of Higher Education in Computing & IT and a second subject – you'll divide your time equally between the two subjects. Computing and business have become closely intertwined throughout the world of work. You will be introduced to various facets of the world of business, and you will explore the profound technological, economic, political and ethical changes driven by the digital technologies that surround us. On completion of this certificate, you will have the basis for further study, leading to careers supporting computer-related projects in a business setting.
