Content

This course will provide students with a deeper understanding of many different social science subjects. Students will have the opportunity to examine how their society works and to compare this with the realities of other cultures. Students will look at theoretical perspectives as well as applying real world examples to Sociology, Psychology and Criminology.

The course may also be attractive if you are a mature student wishing to change career direction or return to full-time study. Completion of this course qualifies you for entry to HNC Social Sciences the following year.

The Volunteering Skills Award provides an important insight into the voluntary sector, as well as a short work placement with a voluntary organisation.
