Content

On this Masters course, you'll learn to produce fine, nuanced writing and a body of work in either poetry, fiction or creative non-fiction. The course combines intensive writers' workshops, technique-focused classes and one-to-one tuition by distinguished writers, along with fascinating and useful visits from authors, agents and publishers to help you on your creative journey.

The course is designed to develop your writing talent. It allows you to intensively focus on a project while engaging with a range of genres and working practices that draw upon our rich expertise in contemporary literature, publishing, film, media and journalism. You'll also develop skills in listening, editing and peer feedback.

Our course is open to all, whether you're already well established in your career, starting out on your creative journey or want to take our MLitt later in life to enhance your skills and explore new creative prospects.

You can exit at the end of stage 1 with a PgCert Creative Writing.

You can exit at the end of stage 2 with a PgDip Creative Writing.
