Content

The LLM Energy Law with Professional Skills offers a practical alternative, with hands-on learning and job-focused training in lieu of a dissertation.

It provides graduates with the knowledge and the full range of skills required to play a key role in the coming decades as the world seeks to meet growing energy demand and the consequent need for unprecedented levels of investment. You gain an in-depth understanding of energy Law and policy, as well as knowledge of corporate governance and responsibility.

Students on this Master's benefit from structured course content designed to support the development of broader personal and professional competencies. Opportunities to develop concrete, industry-sought skills are incorporated into the degree course and acquired alongside and during the study of Energy Law.
