

Person-Centred Practice (School Nursing) (PgDip)

Queen Margaret University

Content

This course is part of the MSC in Person-Centred Practice framework, and reflects the focus of the Division of Nursing on personhood and child and family centred practice. This is set within the contemporary context of health and social care integration and the health and wellbeing agenda.

The aim of this course is to enable you to develop deep and critical understandings of different sources of knowledge and research evidence that contribute to the health and wellbeing of children, young people, families and communities in a way that is consistent with the values of person-centredness and child and family centred care.

You can exit with a PgCert.
