

Social Sciences (Religious Studies)

Open University in Scotland

Content

This is one of several specialist routes available in the BA (Honours) Social Sciences (R23) degree. Half of your studies will be in interdisciplinary social science and sociology giving you a firm grounding in knowledge and ideas central to the social sciences. For the other half, you'll explore a variety of phenomena mediated by religion from consumerism and the environment, atheism and Hindu nationalism, to the urban environment and contemporary pilgrimage.

On completion of your degree, you'll be able to apply political and social theories and analytical techniques to a variety of applied topics that affect individuals and society, and you'll acquire a wide range of transferable skills – opening up employment opportunities in private, public and voluntary sector organisations.
