Content

There has never been a better time to study the social sciences. Whether it's gaining an understanding of the impact of technological change on society, new social movements, crime, climate change and the environment, awareness of mental health & wellbeing, or social problems such as discrimination, inequality and poverty – the social sciences are there to investigate and provide informed explanations.

Through studying perspectives on 21st Century society and culture, you will aim to advance essential skills such as communication, self-awareness, confidence, digital skills, self-management, social intelligence and innovation.

Units covered include:

Sociology; Psychology; Higher English; National 5 Maths; Philosophy; Politics; Preparation for Higher Education – helps support those returning to education and prepare you for the transition to university
