Business Management and French

Open University in Scotland

Content

Learn essential business management skills alongside French and gain an advantage in the global workplace. You'll divide your time equally between both subjects, exploring how businesses develop strategies, handle risk and make decisions. You'll see what's involved in functions such as marketing, accounting and finance. Combining business with French opens doors to French-speaking cultures and communities. With flexible study options and a named degree that reflects your French, you'll graduate with a distinctive mix of skills that prepare you for employment, international opportunities or further study.
