

Business Management and French

Open University in Scotland

Content

This diploma allows you to combine business management with French. You'll divide your study equally between both subjects. It offers a solid grounding in key concepts associated with business management and in the use of French. You'll explore how businesses develop strategies, handle risk and take decisions. You'll see what's involved in functions such as marketing, accounting and finance. Combining this with the study of a modern language opens doors to other cultures and communities, and can provide a key to the global workplace.
