Content

This course covers broadcast television, studio and location work, research, scriptwriting and new media. You'll be well placed to apply for a limited number of competitive internship placements at STV and other local production companies offering valuable hands-on experience in video, broadcast, editing and online production.

The course balances professional level technical production skills and research practice. We have close links with the broadcast industry and you will enjoy the expertise of visiting specialists covering all aspects of TV production and media content, alongside teaching staff, who have direct experience of working in the industry.

Throughout the course, you will have the opportunity to grow your development and production skills in drama, entertainment and factual.
