Year 1: The course you study in first year depends on how much German you have studied before.

If you have an SQA Higher or A-level in German (grade A or B), you can opt for the Level-1 Language and culture course. The course will build on your knowledge of German and reinforce your awareness of linguistic structures, both spoken and written. On the cultural side, you will follow lectures on a number of key genres (such as narrative, film, poetry, drama) and study texts and films in German.

If you are a beginner or near-beginner in the language, provided that you have some previous successful language learning experience, you can take the Level-1 Beginners course, which will provide an intensive foundation in reading, writing and speaking German. If you perform well enough on this course, you can progress to second year and beyond.

You will also study two other subjects in year 1 according to your interests: see Degrees in Arts, Science and Social Sciences.

Year 2: The first-year Language and culture course leads to German 2. This course extends and develops your linguistic skills across a range of activities and builds your knowledge of German culture through the study of further texts and other cultural forms. Students progressing from the first-year Beginners course normally study additional first-year cultural materials alongside the German 2 course.

You will also study one or two other subjects in year 2 according to your interests: see Degrees in Arts, Science and Social Sciences.

Year 3: It is essential that you spend your third year abroad to gain admittance to Honours.
If you are taking German as a Joint Honours subject with another language, you may opt to spend your third year either in a German-speaking country or in a country where the other language is spoken. If you choose to do the latter, you will then spend the spring term of your Junior Honours year (year four) in a German-speaking country.

Years 4 and 5: If you successfully complete the German courses in first and second years, you may progress to Honours German, which may be taken as Single Honours or as Joint Honours. The Honours curriculum consists of core language study and a wide variety of options, all taught by specialists in the field.

We currently offer topics such as German film, the German Novelle, realist literature, comedy, Thomas Mann and Kafka, and modern German thought.
