Content

You will study history of art and Scottish literature in equal depth with this joint honours programme.

The history of art and Scottish literature complement each other well. Both subjects benefit from shared methodologies and historical contexts, and many ideas and movements are shared across the visual arts and literature.

Our programme is extremely flexible. In Years 1 and 2, in addition to your compulsory subjects, you will choose option courses from a broad list of disciplines, then specialise as you progress through your honours years.

We will help you develop an openness to ideas and perspectives other than your own, which is an essential attribute in many careers and the global marketplace.
