Content

Develop your art practice in a supportive, collegiate and nurturing environment, thanks to our student-centered approach to research, learning and teaching.

This course embraces all forms of art practice and celebrates the inherent diversity in each student cohort, including:

sculpture, painting, photography, drawing, printmaking, audio and video, performance installation, work in the public domain

You'll have the opportunity to work across the traditionally medium-defined boundaries imposed by many fine art programmes. In this highly interdisciplinary course we encourage interaction between disciplines by exploring visual knowledge and expression across a range of platforms.
