

Housing (CIH) Level 5 Diploma

City of Glasgow College

Venues

City Campus

Content

This vocational housing course is a key part of the Chartered Institute of Housing's educational programme. It's aimed at level 5 housing professionals already working in a management role within the Housing sector or those who aspire to. It aims to provide the knowledge and skills required for a strategic housing management role and prepare you for further study in housing-related qualifications at level 6 / undergraduate level if you choose.

The qualification meets the expectations for CIH chartered membership on completion of an additional unit Professional Practice Skills for Housing.

The course provides an extensive range of knowledge and skills that are practical in nature and enable you to reflect critically on housing policy and practice.

The course combines theory and practice so that you can apply the things you learn to benefit organisational practice. This serves to promote organisational commitments to best value, with housing services being subject to continuous improvements.
