Content

Spanish is the official language in 20 countries and widely spoken in four more territories, including the United States.

Philosophy has been at the core of Western intellectual life for at least 2,500 years. Studying Spanish and Philosophy together helps us understand the contemporary world, and also sheds light on the past.

Year 1:
You will study either Spanish 1A or 1B, depending on your language skills. Typically, students on Spanish 1B come to University with substantially more experience of studying Spanish than students on Spanish 1A.

In Year 1 and 2, you will take a range of courses that introduce you to a variety of the main areas of Philosophy.

Year 2:
Students of 1A and 1B will come together in our Spanish Language 2 course. This course will help you communicate your ideas in Spanish using more nuanced grammatical structures, vocabulary and syntax. In both your spoken and written work, you will gain confidence in expressing yourself in Spanish ready to study or work abroad in Year 3.

Alternatively, you can begin, or continue, to study Basque or Catalan, expanding your knowledge of Iberian languages and cultures.

You will take courses in areas such as epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of language or philosophy of mind.

Year 3:
You will spend Year 3 in a Spanish-speaking country, deepening your knowledge of Spanish by speaking it daily and immersing yourself in local cultures.

Year 4:
You will study advanced Spanish written language, spoken language and translation into English.

In addition to these core skills courses, you will also choose from a range of specialist, honours-level courses in both Spanish and Philosophy.
