Content

The HNC in Sports Coaching and Development is a one-year course providing the knowledge and skills necessary to work as a professional within the sector. The topics covered range from human anatomy, physiology and biomechanics to sports coaching, sports development and professional practice — including research skills.

The course includes a stand-alone, industry-recognised Professional Development Award in Sports Coaching at SCQF level 7. This one-year course also forms the first year of our 2-year HND course of the same name. On completion of the application and interview, you will be offered the opportunity to enrol for the two-year HND option.

What you will learn:

You will learn methods and techniques to develop yourself as a practitioner in the sports industry which could ultimately lead to a range of employment opportunities. You'll be encouraged to take responsibility for your learning and develop transferable and employability skills such as; independent research, planning, evaluating, presenting and teamwork.
