Content

Year 1:

You will take Social Policy & Society, which debates needs, rights and responsibilities, with a focus on the needs and rights of children and the responsibilities of parents.

You will study Politics of the Welfare State, which examines social policy as a political issue, especially health, employment and education. You can also choose optional courses from other academic areas. You will also take a non-credit course Fundamentals of Social Policy which provides key learning skills.

Year 2:

You will take European Social Policy, which compares different approaches to social policy in various European countries.

You will also take Social and Policy Enquiry, a course to equip you with analytical skills for later years, as well as further Fundamentals classes. You will also study other compulsory courses appropriate to your programme and will select an optional subject.

Year 3:

You can study optional courses that cover areas such as children's rights, employment policies, family policy, criminal justice and health policy. You will also take at least one course on research methods.

Year 4:

You will continue to take social policy courses and will complete an individual research project. This will involve collecting data and information from sources such as the Scottish Government, local authorities and voluntary organisations.
