

Model Making for TV and Film

City of Glasgow College

Venues

City Campus

Content

This Model Making course is for you if you want to develop practical skills in crafts, art and design and who have an interest in the fields of model or prop making for TV, film and theatre, architecture, product design, prototypes, museums, cosplay etc.

You'll be introduced to the basic skills in the design and construction of a wide variety of types of model through project-based units designed to be relevant to future employment and study routes. Projects are varied to cater for a broad range of interests and to allow as much individual creative input as possible.

The dedicated course lecturers bring many years of wide ranging commercial model making experience to the college and have been continually updating and developing the course over the last 10 years. You'll work on projects independently or in groups.
