University of Strathclyde

Content

The Law School at Strathclyde is one of Scotland's leading providers of legal education.

Studying law concerns the obligations, duties and rights of every member of society in relation to their neighbours and to society.

Their expertise extends beyond the traditional core subjects essential for entry to the legal profession into construction law, criminology, human rights law, information technology and telecommunications law, mediation studies and international economic law.

Year 1:

Criminal Law and Evidence, Law of Persons, Legal Processes and Systems, Constitutional Law, Obligations 1, Law and Society. You may apply to join the Law Clinic and integrate this into a degree of LLB (Clinical) at this stage.

Year 2:

Administrative Law and Fundamental Rights, Obligations 2, Law of Property, EU Law, Commercial Law, plus one optional law module.

Year 3:

5 Optional law modules, Reflective project.

Year 4:

Dissertation and four optional law modules.
