Content

If you aspire to a career in the Gaelic media, then this innovative and cutting-edge BA (Hons) Gaelic and Media Studies degree will give you the ideal springboard into this exciting and fast-paced industry.

Once you have gained fluency in Gaelic you will learn how to apply your language skills to a range of exciting and contemporary modules related to the media workplace. These elements are largely theory based and they are designed to develop your understanding of the cultural, social, political and technological contexts within which the media operates, with a particular focus on broadcasting, the internet and film.

Using state-of-the-art digital technology you will take on a practical project, allowing you to put all your theory skills into practice and gain a more rounded and relevant experience.
