University of Dundee

With over 14,000 students on campus from across the globe, the University of Dundee is a diverse and friendly community.

The University has three campuses.

- The Dundee City Campus is compact and has everything you need on your doorstep. This includes the library, sports centre, teaching spaces, Student Union and more.
- Located three miles west of the City Centre Campus is Ninewells Campus. This is home to the University of Dundee's School of Medicine. It's situated within Ninewells Hospital, which is one of Europe's largest teaching hospitals.
- The Kirkcaldy Campus, located in Fife contains its own library, clinical skills centre, lecture theatre, and teaching rooms.

Courses and students

The University of Dundee has eight schools, each one with a focus on a different set of academic disciplines and with associated research centres or units.

Each school offers a variety of undergraduate, taught postgraduate and research courses in a wide range of subjects. Most courses are led by research, with students learning from those on the cutting edge of their discipline.

- Duncan of Jordanstone College of Art & Design
- School of Business
- School of Dentistry
- School of Humanities, Social Sciences and Law
- School of Life Sciences
- School of Medicine
- School of Science and Engineering

All of the University's courses offer September start dates. Some of the courses also have a January intake including courses in Science and Engineering, Business, Nursing and Medical Education. Please visit their website for more information.

Facilities and services

As well as the key facilities mentioned, the University of Dundee also offers a range of support services. They include everything from counselling to careers advice, supporting students throughout their journey.

Dundee University Students' Association (DUSA) is a great place to study, socialise and relax. It's also home to over 240 student societies and 40 sports clubs so there is something to suit every student.
