Open University in Scotland

The Open University (OU) is Scotland's leading provider of part time higher education in Scotland. Around 72% of OU students are in full or part time work while they study and many combine both with other commitments.

No qualifications are required for most OU undergraduate courses. Free tuition is available with around 66% of OU students receiving a part time fee grant.

Courses are taught by supported open learning:

- they are flexible – you learn at a time and place that suits you, enrolling for one module at a time to build up a qualification
- you read materials, complete course work, use electronic learning materials and write assignments
- you have a personal tutor and can also discuss your work with other OU staff and fellow students online, by email and by phone
- you may have to sit exams.

The OU also provides free online learning for everyone through OpenLearn, in partnership with the BBC and social learning platform, FutureLearn.

Courses and students

You can take individual modules or work towards one of over 200 qualifications on offer. These range from certificates and diplomas to degrees and postgraduate awards.

The wide range of subjects includes:

- Arts and Humanities
- Business and Management
- Computing and IT
- Design
- Education
- Engineering
- Environment
- Geography
- Health and Social Care
- Health and Wellbeing
- Languages
- Law
- Mathematics
- Nursing and Healthcare
- Psychology
- Science

• Social Sciences.

The OU in Scotland has a partnership agreement with a number of Scotland's colleges. The university has the advantage of being able to offer articulation routes for HN students into degrees.

The OU in Scotland has over 19,300 students supported by over 380 associate lecturers. Around 23% of these students live in rural or remote areas. The average age of students is 28 years old.

The OU in Scotland ranked first in Scotland for student satisfaction in the National Student Survey 2024.

Facilities and Services

OU students have access to an extensive online library 24 hours a day, seven days a week as well as support services. Staff are also available for students to contact for support by phone or email.
