

Moray College UHI

Moray College UHI is a partner college of the University of the Highlands and Islands. It has two main sites in Elgin and a number of local learning centres located in Buckie, Elgin, Forres, Keith and Nairn.

It provides full time, part time and flexible learning opportunities to around 6,000 students.

The college is also home to 'Moray School of Art', one of Scotland's five art schools.

The Alexander Graham Bell Centre for Digital Health, situated in Elgin, Moray's historic administrative centre, is a research, education and business hub. The Centre has been designed to bring together the expertise in Digital Health Care and Life Sciences within the region and across Scotland.

Courses and subjects

Courses are available at all levels, from introductory to degree and postgraduate. There is also a range of vocational and industry qualifications.

Subject areas include: Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences; Business and Leisure; Computing and IT; Creative and Cultural Industries; Education and Child Care; Energy, Engineering and Construction; Health and Wellbeing; and Science and Environment.

Facilities and services

State-of-the-art training facilities for students include a technology centre, with numerous workshops and laboratories for different engineering disciplines, the administration training suite and the hairdressing, beauty and complementary therapy salons. A new student residence in Elgin with 40 en-suite bedrooms with shared kitchen and living areas, opened in 2017.

Study support staff are based at the centre to help with a range of issues.

Specialisms

Moray School of Art is unique in that it is the only semi-rural located art school in Scotland, providing ideal inspiration for students in this subject area. Due to a special partnership with Taigh Chearsabhagh Museum and Arts Centre, fine art students can complete part of their degree on the Uists and part by distance learning.
