

Teacher - Secondary School - Art and Design

Art and design teachers prepare and give lessons in drawing, painting, printing, computer-assisted design, photography, sculpture, ceramics and other crafts. They work to guidelines set up by the Curriculum for Excellence and prepare pupils, aged 11 to 18, for national exams.

The Work

You could be:

- encouraging children to express themselves and develop their talents
- using a variety of teaching methods including whole class lessons, projects, demonstrations and discussions
- using a range of materials including paper, paint, clay, cameras and computers
- setting assignments, projects, tests and exams, preparing and carrying out continuous assessment, marking pupils' work and writing reports
- keeping good order in the classroom and dealing with discipline issues
- doing administrative work, including keeping a register of pupils
- preparing for and attending parent-teacher meetings and staff meetings
- sometimes supervising out of hours activities such as social events or outings
- meeting regularly with other departments to plan interdisciplinary projects.

Pay

Teachers in Scotland are paid on a national salary scale. The starting annual salary for a probationer teacher is £27,498 (April 2020).

If you do your probationary period on the Teacher Induction Scheme, and are prepared to work anywhere in Scotland during that probationary year, you can also apply for the Preference Waiver Payment. For secondary school teachers, the payment is £8,000 before tax and national insurance.

After your probationary year, your salary will increase to £32,994 and increase an increment each year up to £41,412.

If you teach in a remote school or on certain islands you may get an additional allowance. £2,265 for a distance island and £1,614 or £3,024, for a remote school.

Where a teacher is employed in a remote school on a distant island both the remote schools allowance and the distant islands allowance are paid, in addition to the teacher's normal salary.

A principal teacher earns between £45,150 and £58,269 a year, while the scale for depute head teachers and head teachers ranges from £51,207 to £98,808 a year, depending on the size of school.

Salaries in independent schools may differ slightly.

Conditions

- You would work in a classroom, studio or workshop.
- Your working hours are based on a 35-hour week, working in a classroom 9.00am to 3.30pm or 4.00pm. You would use the rest of the time for preparation and marking.
- You may have to do some preparation and assessment work at home, in the evenings or at weekends.
- You would have 13 weeks holiday each year, but you would probably use some of this time to prepare the next term's work.
- You would have to work some evenings to attend parents' evening, curriculum meetings and other school events.
- You should be aware that teaching is a mentally and physically demanding job.

Getting In

To become a secondary teacher of art and design, you must have a degree (SCQF Level 9-10) in art and design (or a similar subject) and a Professional Graduate Diploma (SCQF 11) in Education (PGDE).

Your degree

- Entry requirements for degree courses in art and design vary, but you normally need 4-5 Highers including Art and Design or Design and Manufacture, and preferably English. You also need a good portfolio of art work.
- You must also have Higher English and National 5 Maths. National 5 Applications of Maths is accepted in place of Maths.
- Your degree must contain at least 80 credit points covering Fine (or Contemporary) Art and Design. 20 credits may come from Digital Art/Design or Photography).
- 40 of the credit points must have been studied at SCQF Level 8 (second year undergraduate level) or above.

PGDE

- For entry to the PGDE, you need an approved degree together with Higher English and National 5 Maths - some institutions specify at B. National 5 Applications of Maths is accepted in place of Maths at all universities.
- Edinburgh, Glasgow, Strathclyde and West of Scotland universities offer the PGDE in Art and Design.
- There is a lot of competition for places in these courses. It helps if you have experience of working with children or young people.
- For PGDE courses, apply through UCAS.

Alternative Routes

- There are a number of new teacher training programmes available, most linked to local authorities. See Teach In Scotland for full details and to see which subjects are covered.

You will require a satisfactory criminal record check from Disclosure Scotland to show that you are suitable for this type of work. Contact Disclosure Scotland for details on the type you would need.

Newly qualified teachers who want to teach in local council schools must complete a probationary period to demonstrate that they meet the Standard for Full Registration of the General Teaching Council for Scotland (GTC Scotland). Those who wish to teach in independent schools may also require to be registered.

You are guaranteed a teaching post with a Scottish local authority for a full school year to complete this probationary period.

What Does It Take

You need to have:

- an interest in child development and an understanding of how children learn
- patience and adaptability
- enthusiasm and energy
- confidence
- a firm and assertive approach when necessary
- good organisational skills
- a sense of humour and a positive outlook.

You need to be able to:

- hold the interest of pupils of all abilities and encourage them
- work on your own and as part of a team
- stay calm under pressure
- get on well with other staff members, parents and carers.

Training

- You will do in-service training (often provided by local councils) throughout your teaching career.
- You might also take part time courses in special aspects of education, run by universities.

Getting On

- You may be promoted to be a principal teacher or head of department.
- You may then become a depute head teacher and then a head teacher.
- You might move into related work such as learning support teaching, further education lecturing, advisory work, education authority administration or schools inspection.

More Information

Job vacancies are normally advertised on local authority websites or look on the myjobscotland website.

Most teachers work in local authority schools but there are also jobs in independent schools, British schools abroad, such as schools for the children of British armed services and in private tuition.
