

Playworker or Play Leader

Playworkers organise, plan and take part in play and leisure activities for children. They also care for and supervise the children, making sure that they are safe and happy. They often work in before and after school clubs.

They are sometimes also called play assistant or crèche worker.

The Work

You could be:

- developing, planning and organising play activities for children aged three to five or for schoolchildren aged up to sixteen years of age
- using play activities to help children to develop socially and emotionally
- setting up play equipment and making sure play areas are safe
- supervising children for fair behaviour during play, dealing with any minor injuries
- liaising with parents or carers
- preparing snacks for the children
- taking children on day trips or other outings or organising nature walks in parks
- keeping records and controlling petty cash
- dropping off and picking children up from local schools (if you work in out-of-school care).

Pay

The figures below are only a guide. Actual pay rates may vary, depending on:

- where you work
- the company or organisation you work for
- the demand for the job.

Salaries for playworkers are usually between £13.00 and £15.00 an hour.

Conditions

- The work is usually indoors but may on occasion be outdoors.
- You might work in a wide range of settings including: community centres, hospital playgroups, parks or adventure playgrounds, playbuses, holiday play schemes and other types of children's clubs, creches or youth clubs.
- You might work full time, but part time work is very common.
- Working hours typically start at 8.00am and finish at 6.00pm. Hours may be concentrated in the evening after school, or during the school holidays.
- School breakfast clubs run from 8.00am until 9.00am and after-school clubs run from 3.00pm until 6.00pm. You would cover both these shifts.

Getting In

- You need a good general education.
- The most relevant qualification is the Scottish Vocational Qualification (SVQ) in Playwork at SCQF Level 6 and 7.
- You may need to have 3 to 5 subjects at National 4 or 5 including English, and be at least 17 years old, for entry to some courses.
- You could start through a Modern Apprenticeship. This can lead to the SVQ in Social Services (Children and Young People) at SCQF Level 7. For entry you may need to have at least 3 subjects at National 4 or 5 including English.
- Completing a Foundation Apprenticeship in Social Services (Children and Young People) whilst at school may increase your chances of getting accepted on an HNC or into a Modern Apprenticeship.
- Relevant experience, for example as a playgroup volunteer, is useful and sometimes required. If you are in a suitable job you can do relevant SVQs on a part time basis.
- First aid training is also useful.
- By law, all playworkers must register with the Scottish Social Services Council (SSSC).
- You will require a satisfactory criminal record check from Disclosure Scotland to show that you are suitable for this type of work. Contact Disclosure Scotland for details on the type you would need.

What Does It Take

You should be:

- enthusiastic
- a good team worker
- patient and caring
- able to get on well with children, their parents and carers
- reliable
- well organised
- adaptable and creative
- aware of health and safety issues
- firm and decisive, particularly when working with teenagers.

You should also have:

- a real interest in developing children through play
- imagination
- good communication skills
- a sense of fun
- the ability to motivate children.

Training

Playworkers working in playwork settings which provide care in the absence of parents must be registered with the Scottish Social Service Council (SSSC) and working towards SSSC endorsed qualifications.

Getting On

- With further experience and training, you can move on to become a senior playworker, a supervisor, manager or development worker.
- Studying for the SVQ in Playwork at SCQF Level 9 qualifies you as a Playworker Professional.
- If you want to become a manager in a day care centre for children you will need to have a BA Hons degree in Childhood Practice. The SSSC website has more details.
- You might even decide to set up your own nursery or playgroup.
